THE UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA STAFF BULLETIN

EDMONTON 7, ALBERTA

It's hardly a Parisian sidewalk cafe (there are no wine, beer, and Cinzano ashtrays), but on a hot day in July the terrace of Lister Hall can be almost as pleasant.

SCHOOL OF LIBRARY SCIENCE ACCREDITED

The School of Library Science, established in August, 1968, has been granted accreditation by the American Library Association.

The accreditation was made retroactive to cover both years of the school's operation and all graduates of the School. To be admitted to graduate study at other library schools in Canada and the United States students generally must be graduates of an accredited school.

Accreditation assures prospective employers that graduating students have completed a program which meets present library standards and assists the school in recruiting quality faculty members and attracting students of a high calibre.

The evaluation team visited the school in April. It included SISTER PETER CLAVER, Director of Documentation at the Centre for Applied Research in the Apostolate and formerly Director of the Department of Library Science at Rosary College, River Forest, Illinois; BRIAN LAND, Director of the School of Library Science at the University of Toronto; and AGNES L. REAGAN, Assistant Director of Accreditation in The Office of Library Education of the American Library Association.

One of the bases for accreditation is that the school be a recognized part of a responsible parent institution, in this case The University of Alberta, which will guarantee the School's status and continuing financial support. In addition the school must have a staff adequate in number and competence to carry out the program and a curriculum which includes general and specialized study of all types of libraries and library services and which keeps abreast of current trends.

The School of Library Science is the sixth accredited school in Canada and the only school in the prairie provinces.

LIBRARY TO MOVE LITERATURE COLLECTIONS (AGAIN)

With the occupancy of the north wing of the Cameron Library last October, the social sciences and humanities collections were shifted to use the additional space. In this move the P-PZ classes, the language-literature collections, were placed on the three upper floors. Since that time the language and literature departments have expressed their dissatisfaction with the arrangement.

In order to arrive at a distribution which will be acceptable to all users the Library will be rearranging the collections during the next several weeks.

During the move library users should consult the bulletin boards near the elevators to determine the location of books.

EVENING CREDIT COURSES OFFERED IN THE NORTH

This fall, the Evening Credit program will extend for the first time into northern Alberta and the Northwest Territories.

An interdepartmental course, Anthropology and Education, will be offered in Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, and two half-year Educational Psychology courses will be taught in Fort McMurray in northeastern Alberta. Concentrated classes will be held every two weeks with the instructor arriving on a Friday and teaching four hours that day and two hours on Saturday morning. Each community will be supplied a kit of appropriate books from the University Library for the use of students throughout the year.

These courses represent three of the 34 Evening Credit courses to be held in sixteen centres during the coming academic year.
